The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

Labor's Reform Bill Eyed

Too little has been reported on the Labor Reform Bill, now being considered in Congress. And if it passes, it will have a profound effect on the backbone of of the free enterprise system — those professionals making of the community of small businesses.

Because the Bill appears to have the backing of the national administration, we'll be hearing all the positive sides of the issue.

In addition, it is the 1978 target for passage by union leadership. Therefore, it is reasonable to provide some negative elements of the Bill. These have been supplied in reports by the National Federation of Independent business (NFIB).

Regardless of need or lack of it, the so-called Labor Reform Bill seems to be a push by Big Labor to gain new members.

Union membership has been decreasing steadily over the past several years, so it's not surprising that union leaders would want to do something about this. But the Labor Reform Bill (S. 1883 - H.R. 8410) tries to solve Labor's membership problems by mandating several new policies which are blatantly unfair to employers.

For instance, the Senate version of the bill would allow unions to call elections within 15 days if a majority of employees seek the election. This hardly seems enough time for an employer to do an adequate job of presenting his side of the story.

The bill would also allow union organizers to talk to employees about the union on company property during company time, if the employer has done so. Unions are already allowed to contact employees at their homes, but employers are forbidden to do this. This prohibition would remain.

The bill also has disturbing punitive provisions. The most disturbing is one which states that employers who willfully violate a National Labor Relations Board order would be prohibited from obtaining federal contracts for up to three years. That is an extremely stiff penalty. It would put many firms out of business, which doesn't even make sense from the union's point of view.

Another provision says that if NLRB finds that an employer has refused to bargain in good faith for a particular period, it can impose mandatory wage rates on the employer for that period. The wage rates will be based on the average wages paid to bargaining units of 5,000 or more employees — in other words, large firms. NFIB, with a membership of more than 525,000 small businesses around the country has noted that this provision would work a real hardship on small businesses, since their wages are normally lower than big business wages.

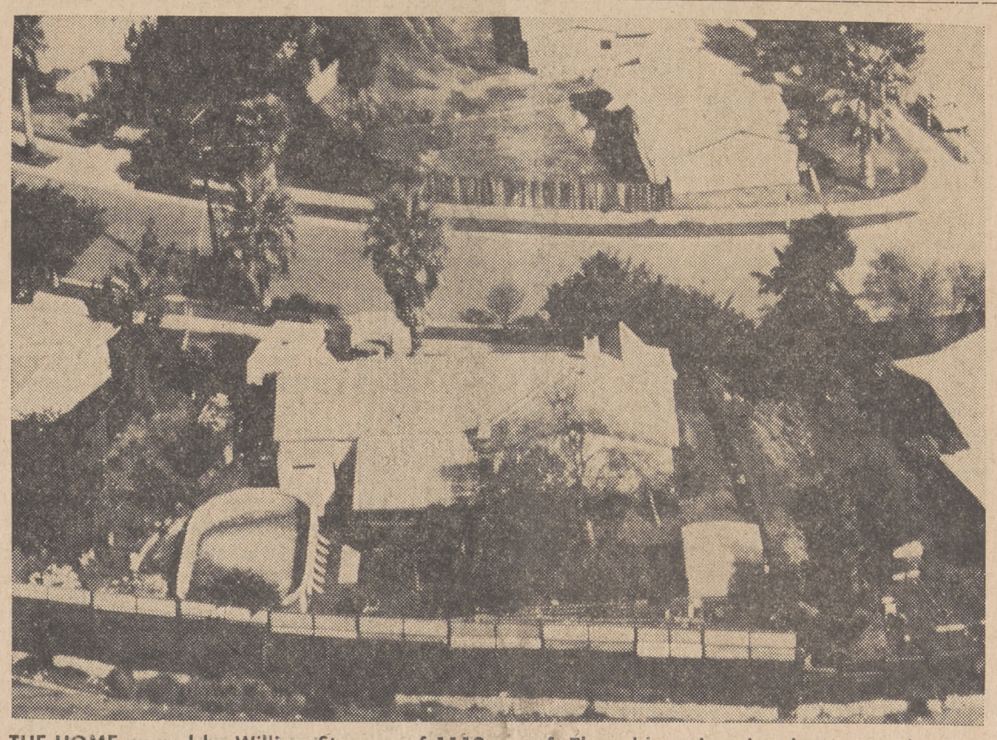
It would also directly involve the federal government in setting wage rates in the private sector, something that has been carefully avoided in the 42-year history of labor law.

A third provision requires the NLRB to seek an immediate court-ordered reinstatement of any employee believed to be illegally discharged during a union organizing campaign, until the NLRB has time to make a final decision on the merits of the case.

This means an employer may be forced to temporarily rehire employees who have been fired for good cause. The senate version of the bill adds that illegally fired employees must be reinstated with double back pay.

If the Labor Reform Bill passes, it could easily have the effect of making employers throw up their hands and allow unionization of their firms, whether their employees want it or not, just to avoid these unreasonable penalties.

This, of course, would increase union membership. And this is what Big Labor wants, says NFIB.



THE HOME owned by William Starman of 1110 Stoneridge, Lemon Grove, is one of the first in the area to have its address painted on the roof. The address is painted atop a patio area just right of the swimming pool and is barely visable in the photograph.

The ASTREA Project

A Little White Paint on the Roof Could Provide Burglary Protection

by Fred Ash

Its acroymn is ASTREA, its title is Aerial Support to Regional Enforcement Agencies, and its push is to convince homeowners to paint their addresses on the rooftops of their homes.

The ASTREA project started in 1972 by the San Diego Sheriff's Department is described by the unit's leader, Lt. William G. Bradley, as: "The greatest mobile observation platform you can have."

The unit is comprised of five light helicopters, piloted by SD Sheriffs, which hover to uncover potential burglaries, auto thefts, rapes, or any suspicious activity which can be spotted from the air.

The Problem

But these modern day cops of a turbulence beat have a problem making their rounds.

Once in the air, finding a residence in which a burglary is occuring is somewhat like spotting a lost dime in tall grass.

For this reason, the Sheriffs who man ASTREA and the members of the Crime Prevention Unit are advocating that homeowners paint their addresses on their rooftops.

From the air, the house numbers can be easily spotted by ASTREA's choppers.

The Procedure

According to Dave Hannum, the pilot of our excursion with ASTREA, his job in the air is to spot activity around residences and radio this information to ground units stationed nearby.

Due to the size of San Diego County and the time it takes to get ground units to a particular area, the helicopters are no more than 35 minutes from any point in the county.

From the air, the Sheriff can spot if anyone leaves the house and in what direction they go.

At night, brilliant spot lights are mounted on the unnumbers on their rooftops in white latex paint. The paint der fuselage of the machine.

The Solution

At least two local homeowners have painted their house seems not to detract from the home and provides the sheriffs with a valuable reference point.

According to Hannum, himself a Navy Reservist pilot, picking out specific residences on a particular street makes his job more difficult.

"We know the areas we must cover but to find one residence on a particular street turns into a problem."

Hannum said his specific concern with with schools.

"Crime around schools tends to be high. But picking out a specific school from the air seems to be our biggest problem."

Hannum divulged the Santee School District has become the first in the County to help the Sheriff's with Operation ASTREA.

"The Santee School district asked a janitor to take a bucket of white paint and put the name of the school on the rooftops," he explained. "They did not go to any elaborate artistry, but simply put the name of the school on the roof. This is vital to us and it is too bad more districts don't follow the example."

Community School Councils Win Mott Foundation Grants

A new boost to the leadership capabilities of the advisory councils to both Lemon Grove Community schools in on its way. That boost will be a cash grant of $5,000 apiece.

Both the local community schools, Monterey Heights and Golden Avenue, have qualified for $5,000 cash grants from Project SNAP (Stimulating the Neighborhood Action Process), a project funded by the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation.

Charles Stewart Mott, one of the founders of General Motors Corporation, set aside monies for the SNAP project and locally, the San Diego County Department of Education department decided to make grants of $5,000 apiece to 30 of the 39 community schools in the county.

The grants, won by both the Monterey Heights and Golden Avenue Community Schools will go to the advisory councils, the direct body charged with governing the community schools.

The grants require the advisory councils to poll the residents of the school's area to find out ways the school could better its functions.

Donna Adams, director of the Monterey Heights Community School explained the philosophy behind the grants and how the money would be spent this way.

"It is one of those lofty, idealistic proposals aimed at getting people working together."

"And," she added, "I think it can work."

Mrs. Adams said the Mott Foundation has a virtual "no strings attached" attitude for the $5,000 grants and has opted for, rather, allowing the citizens to develop leadership and cohesiveness among themselves to solve their problems.

The Mott Foundation does require a poll of the community, proof such poll has been taken, and that the money does not go to equipment purchases or salaries.

The Leadership

Donna Adams said the SNAP grant will be used strictly for projects in which the citizens of the community school area are interested.

"We here at Monterey Heights have no preconceived plans on how the money will be spent," she reinterated. "The community must decide."

Through the required citizen poll and voting by the Community School advisory council will come the decisions on how the money is to be spent.

"I believe," Adams added, "the grant is a sincere attempt to lay the decision making process on the people of

Homemaker Chore Services Sought

The County of San Diego will begin advertising this month for contract bids for adult homemaker chore services.

The Board of Supervisors unanimously voted to authorize the Department of Public Welfare to issue bid invitations for providing these services through an agency vendor contract.

The in-home supportive services enable the aged, disabled and blind to receive needed assistance in their own homes, thus preventing physical or mental deterioration that would lead to out-of-home placement.

In order to evaluate bids more objectively, a 100-point ranking system was devised last year. The Board has approved an amendment to this point spread system to indicate quality of service is as important as cost.

The amended point system provides 37½ points for quality and 37½ points for cost of delivery service.

25 points are awarded to the bidder with the greatest management and fiscal capabilities necessary for management and implementation of services as outlined in the invitation for bids.

Although the ranking system is considered the most objective, the State Department of Health requires that the lowest bidder should be awarded the contract. However, under the point system, a bidder other than the lowest responsive and responsible bidder may be chosen.

Awarding the contract to other than the lowest bidder requires prior approval from the State.

City Eyes $290,000 of Block Grant Aid

The Lemon Grove City Council, now meeting in the L.G. Community Center, 3146 School lane, covered more than a dozen items Monday although none seemed to be of shaking importance.

There was the matter of what to do with approximately $290,000 from the H.C.D. Block Grant program.

Council earmarked $100,000 expansion of the Community Center; $10,000 0for a pedestrian traffic signal crossing on Broadway between Imperial and Grove (just what that part of Broadway needs—another traffic signal) $40,000 for General Plan preparation and staff, and $60,000 for improvements at the Berry st. Park.

At least half of the expenditures are restricted to certain low or moderate income family areas—generally north of Broadway.

Council also approved the Conflict of Interest Code as required to comply with provision of existing law.

First reading of a resolution was approved by which a planning commission will be created. 5 members will be chosen for the non-paying commission assignments. Applications are being accepted now at City Hall.

Council also upheld the decision of the director of Land Use & Environmental Regulation (LUER) in the matter of EDCo Disposal at 6670 Federal blvd.

The resolution noted that the property is within the (M) Industrial Zone and is used as a draying and trucking yard or terminal and that the zoning prohibits such use. Such use is permitted in M1, M2 and M3 industrial zones, but not M and that the use constitutes a public nuisance. EDCo has appealed LUER's earlier notice of non-compliance.

A petition with approximately 800 names urged Council to make the Community Center's use free instead of an established $5 fee. The petition was presented by the Chicano Federation. The matter was referred to staff.

The next meeting will be February 21 — on Tuesday, Community Center — the permanent meeting place of the group. Meeting starts at 7:30 p.m.

Holiday Defers Meet

The next council meeting will be on Tuesday, February 21. Monday is a holiday—Washington's Birthday.

Watch Seller Peddles Off 'Name' Brands

A man, who asked anonymity, was leaving the Spring Valley Swap meet area Sunday.

He was approached by a middle-aged man of medium build who may have been of Hawaiian extraction. His face was pock-marked.

He offered two, new watches for $75. He was turned down.

He lowered the price to $60; then $50. He continued to implore the local man to buy the wrist watches — a man's and a woman's — for gifts if for no other reason.

He finally made an offer the local man couldn't refuse. "Take them both for $25," he urged.

The famed name "Omega" was discernible. Such watches are worth $100 or more.

After the purchase was made the buyer had second thought. "What if they were stolen? Would I be an accessory to a theft?" he asked himself.

Good judgment prevailed. He took the watches to the sheriff's Lemon Grove office. There Sgt. Roger Jacobs put the watches under a magnifying glass. The man's watch carried the nameplate "OMEGA"; That was close. The woman's read "OMECA" but the horizontal bar of the "A" touched the "C" and only a careful viewer could have read anything but "OMEGA" on the face of the watch.

Sgt. Jacobs said such watches wholesale at $6 — give or take a buck. Retailers get $10-$12 for them.

The buyer wasn't exactly ripped off. But he didn't get a bargain. Learning the difference between the worth and what he paid gave him a police evaluation — and that is worth something.

At least he knows he didn't buy "hot" jewelry — an act that might have put him in jail.

Meanwhile, the word is out from sheriff's detectives. "Be careful! You can't get something for nothing. Many unusual "bargains" have an "unusual" reason. One reason is to separate you from your money. Ask yourself what the reason may be. It may save considerable embarrassmen."

If you have had such a recent experience you may want to talk to Sgt. Jacobs at 236-2902 or Detective Richard Rabell of the Fraud Dept. at 236-2952.

Sups Growth Control Plans To Be Told at Cajon Forum

An overview of the County's proposed growth management plan will be discussed at a public forum Saturday at El Cajon Valley High School.

The forum is sponsored by the office of Supervisor Lucille V. Moore and the County Growth Management Program. The meeting will be held 10 a.m.-2 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

A review of the proposed growth plan will be conducted by Mrs. Moore, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors; David Neilson, director of the County Growth Management Program, and Nikki Symington and Kim John Kilkenny, members of Moore's staff.

The proposed Growth Management Plan is a series of policies and ordinances being presented at public hearings prior to being submitted to the Board of Supervisors for adoption in April.

The Saturday forum, the second to be held in Moore's Second Supervisorial District, will address growth management, housing costs, incorporations and annexations, and the impact of growth on rural communities.

"The forum is an opportunity for citizens of the East County to learn about the County's proposed growth management policy and express their opinions," she said.

Two Lemon Grove Men Honored by Society

MINNEAPOLIS—Two Lemon Grove men have qualified for 1977 sales honors with Lutheran Brotherhood, Minneapolis-based fraternal insurance society.

They are Adolph Helgeson Jr., FIC, of 8080 Haven dr., and Douglas Roberts of 1501 Koe st. Both men qualified for the Leaders Club.

Woodrow P. Langhaugh, president, said these district representatives qualified on the basis of the amount of life and health insurance protection provided for Lutherans in their areas.

They are associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Frank Jellison Agency, headquartered in La Mesa.

In addition to providing insurance and other financial services, Lutheran Brotherhood operates a fraternal activities program with an unusual budget of more than $9 million.

Younger Officially Governor Candidate

California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger is in the race for governor.

He made the announcement official in San Diego at a meeting of some 80 individuals who came to breakfast at the Harbor Island TraveLodge. Most of them will serve on his executive committee.

He said he would target his campaign on taxes, inflation, energy and violent crime.

Younger noted that he had received more votes for reelection in 1974 than Brown received in his election as governor.

Younger also received more votes than any other Republican candidate, he said.

"I believe Jerry Brown can be defeated and that of all potential Republican candidates I have the broadest base of voter support and the best chance to win," he said.

Other candidates include Ed Davis, L.A. Police Chief; S.D.'s Mayor Pete Wilson; Fresno Assemblyman Ken Maddy and State Senator John V. Briggs.

He described Gov. Brown as "Jerry in blunderland."

"Instead of developing solutions to problems, he says you can't get there from here so 'lower your expectations' or move to outer space," Younger said.

"Taxes are so high people can't afford to go on his trip to outer space," he said.

"People want leadership to solve our problems right here on earth," Younger said.

There's An Answer

by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale

No Faith in Self

Q. I keep searching for something to do with my life, but I don't have any desire or dedication. I've been convinced that I'm always going to make a mistake, and because of my fears I always blow it.

I find it hard to have faith in anyone because I don't have faith in me. How can I help myself?

A. You are a victim of a long-held mental image of always seeing yourself as making a mistake and being a flop. There is a deep tendency in the human mind to become precisely as one pictures or imagines one's self as being.

Why not use the imaging process positively and creatively? Think up a goal. Hold it tenaciously in your mind. See or imagine yourself as achieving that goal. That image can likewise become a fact.

I recommend to you one of my own books, "The Power of Positive Thinking."

Perhaps it will help you as it has helped others in similar situations.

Rejected by Friends

Q. I had thought I had plenty of friends and a warm family until my husband was transferred here from another state.

I have written them all at least several letters, sent cards and tried to keep in touch, but there is no response. I had always called them and made a point of visiting them often. I guess I needed them more than they needed me because they seldom would call on me. They were always happy to see me, so I wonder if I made a pest out of myself.

Believe me, I feel rejected, rebuffed, put-off, lonely, resentful and on and on.

I try not to feel sorry for myself, but boy! Every once in awhile the resentment comes and hits me over the head like a hammer. Please help me.

A. When you move away from a locality it is a fact that the relationships you had in that place tend to disintegrate. In the very nature of the case you are out of the circle.

The people back home still like you — but due to removal from the locality, you are no longer an active factor in their daily lives.

This is just the way it is, and it does not mean in any sense that you are rejected or rebuffed.

Put them on your Christmas card list, and start again by making new friends in your new community.

Donating Body for Research

Q. Is it against God's plan for us to donate one's body to a medical school for anatomical study?

This involves cremation of parts unused and the ashes they will bury in the hospital cemetery. I have reasons for wishing to do so. First of all, it would help the living at some future time, plus save all those funeral expenses which are so immense today.

A. The physical body, while a marvelous instrument in itself, is actually for the purpose of housing the personality, the real you.

When your real self no longer need the body because of the end of your physical life, then the body is discarded. It is to be treated honorably, of course, and is buried or cremated with ceremony.

To leave the body to a medical school for study so that disease may be conquered for people yet living is likewise honorable treatment, and such humanitarian use cannot possibly be against God's will.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

CHP Seeks Women For Traffic Jobs

Candidates for the position of State Traffic Officer Cadet-Female are being recruited this month by the California Highway Patrol.

Applications, which must be postmarked by March 2, are available at all CHP and State Personnel Board offices. The written examination will be given April 1.

CHP E. County Commander Clarence Douglas said the "women's list established from a 1977 examination is virtually exhausted.

Enough men remain on that eligible list to supply candidates through early 1979, but an examination is required to assure availability of qualified women for appointment as cadets."

Qualifications include:

AGE: 20 (Must be 21 at appointment) to 31.

VISION: Uncorrected not less than 20/40, correctable to 20/20 in each eye.

WEIGHT: Proportional to height; waist measurement not in excess of chest at repose.

HEALTH: Normal, with no physical handicaps which would interfere with job performance.

EDUCATION: High school diploma or equivalent.

The starting salary is $1,259 per month. The names of women who pass the written and oral interview tests will be placed on the civil service eligible list. Appointment to the Academy is then contingent upon passing a physical performance test and a background investigation.

Candidates selected for training will attend the CHP Academy near Sacramento for 21 weeks before they graduate and become State Traffic Officers.

Commissioner Craig said, "This examination is part of the California Highway Patrol's continuing effort to increase employment opportunities for women, including those from ethnic minorities. We are seeking candidates of every ethnic background."

Local Girl Scouts On Two TV Channels

Girl Scouts from the San Diego-Imperial Council will be featured in a special television report on Mutual of Omaha's "Wild Kingdom" which will be aired Friday at 7:30 p.m. on L.A.'s KNBC, ch. 4, and at 12:30 p.m. Sunday on XETV ch. 6.

The episode, "Girl Scouting and the Wild Kingdom," offers an insight to the different wildlife projects that have been undertaken by Girl Scouts at the North County Wildlife Rescue and Treatment Society in Poway, and Project Wildlife in Alpine.

As host Marlin Perkins says, "The future of the world's wildlife lies in the hands of our young people, and the work being done by the Girl Scouts makes it obvious that it is very much in the right hands".

This special report opens with a scene at the North County Wildlife Rescue and Treatment Society, where Girl Scouts of the San Diego-Imperial Council are working to help in the care of injured or abandoned wild animals. A red-tailed hawk with a broken wing, an undernourished mule deer fawn, a motherless raccoon and a bobcat with a broken leg are all shown being helped by the Girl Scouts at the center.

The animals that have been rehabilitated here are taken to Girl Scout Camp Winacka, five miles southwest of Julian and released into their natural environment. Mutual's Wild Kingdom photographers were fortunate to capture on film the dilemma a coyote experienced choosing between captivity and the new freedom within the sanctuary. Literally hundreds of animals, after being seriously injured or desperately ill, have been nursed back to health and released by the Girl Scouts. The special report then shifts to Wyoming, where Girl Scouts are learning about wildlife and the out-of-doors at Girl Scout National Center West.

Some of the Girl Scouts featured in Girl Scouting and the Wild Kingdom will be interviewed on Raff Ahlgren's "Weekend" show which will air on Sunday, at 11:30 a.m. on ch. 6. just preceeding the Wild Kingdom show.

"Girl Scouting & The Wild Kingdom" offers a rare opportunity to see what is being done by the modern Girl Scout to further conservation and preservation of wildlife, while developing her own self reliance.

All the news releases around Valentine's Day are giving little tips on how to win hearts.

But who can think of hearts on an empty stomach?

It takes little effort; you don't even have to stir it.

And remember: the way through a hard head is via a soft stomach.

- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 (1-pound 14-ounce) can tomatoes.
- 1 cup water
- 1 (4-ounce) package shredded mozarella cheese

Brown beef in large skillet. Sprinkle with half of spaghetti sauce mix. Spoon on cottage cheese. Cover with uncooked noodles.

Sprinkle with remaining spaghetti sauce mix, basil, parsley and salt. break up tomatoes with fork and pour over top. Add water.

Cover tightly and simmer 30 to 35 minutes.

Problems are Created By Unhooked Telephones

Leaving the phone off the hook when you don't want to be disturbed is one way of avoiding calls, but it's also the wrong way.

That was the advice offered by Helen Speratos, Pacific Telephone's local manager.

"Many people think that leaving a phone off the hook means only that they won't get phone calls. Some don't stop to think of the residual effects, she said.

Dial tone equipment is shared by all customers and it it's tied up, a dial tone may not be there when a person needs it the most . . . to call a fire department, police, doctor, or other emergency agencies.

She also raised the possibilities that if a person leaves his phone off the hook, he could easily miss an important call he's not expecting or someone trying to reach him in an emergency.

"It's a great temptation to leave a phone off the hook, either to avoid being disturbed or trying to make a burglar believe you are at home when you're not," she said.

The local manager then listed several ways to achieve both ends without interfering with phone service.

She explained that there's a small wheel on the bottom or back of a telephone handset that lets you adjust the volume of the phone ring.

Another way to achieve the same effect is to muffle the bell by setting a phone on a soft surface, such as rug, blanket or pillow.

Other possibilities include obtaining either a bell silencer or cut-off switch. both available at PacTel's local business offices for nominal additional charges.

RECORD HOLDER — Mike Tully, the world indoor record holder at 18'-4", will headline outstanding pole vault field in the 12th annual Jack in the Box Invitational, Friday night, February 17, at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Olympic's Top High Jumpers To Compete in Indoor Games

The one-two-three finishers in the high jump at the 1976 Olympic Games—Jacek Wszola of Poland, Canada's Greg Joy and colorful Dwight Stones — will be reunited in battle at the 12th annual Jack in the Box Invitational, Friday night, February 17, at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Wszola was the surprise winner of the Montreal Games after the heavily favored Stones was badly hampered by the downpour that affected his run. Of course, the rain affected all the jumpers. But Dwight's style is such it may have been most damaging to him.

At that time, Dwight was dominant in his specialty. Since then he has lost his world records, too. The latest went to Joy, the 1976 silver medalist, who leaped 7-7 in the recent Washington D.C. meet.

Stones now says he won't quit high jumping until he has regained both the indoor and outdoor world marks. He said his confidence was improved by a victory over Joy in the recent Sunkist Invitational. Dwight won at 7-5 in that meet.

Dwight set the previous world indoor record of 7-6½ in the 1976 Jack in the Box meet.

Conditions and competition would appear favorable for another record possibility in the 1978 meet.

The greatest two-mile field ever assembled indoors has been set for the job.

The lineup will include Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania, world 5000-meter record holder Dick (Ducky) Quax of New Zealand, Kenya's Henry Rono. Olympic marathon king Frank Shorter and Nick Rose of Great Britain.

An outsider in the race will be former San Diego prep winder Thom Hunt, now a sophomore at Arizona. Hunt set the national high school mile record of 4:02.6 in the 1976 Jack in the Box meet.

Nyambui recently ran history's fastest two mile on a 11-lap track — 8:18 — in winning the Sunkist Invitational. Rono was second in that race at 8:18.3, second best for a conventional indoor track. Rose, the European Cup champion, was third in a fast 8:20.3.

Quax set the present world 5000-meter mark of 13:12.9 last summer. He was the silver medalist in that prestigious race in the Montreal Olympics.

Shorter is the defending champion in the Jack in the Box, having defeated Rod Dixon of New Zealand in a stunning upset. He set an American record for two miles a while back in the event.

The San Diego track is known for its fast distance times, so a world record is the goal of the classy field.

Outdoors & Travel

By E. L. "Buck" Rogers

There aren't as many billfishing devotees around the country as there are bass fishermen, but sooner or later most dedicated anglers hanker to have a crack at landing a sailfish or marlin.

So, I thought a mite of information on this subject might might come in handy whether you have a billfish hanging on your den wall or not.

When one thinks of billfish it is normal to consider Florida or the Bahamas. I, however, am going to suggest you look a little farther afield and concentrate on Pacific waters rather than Atlantic Pacific sailfish grow twice as large as the Atlantic variety and they're more numerous. The same thing can be said for marlin, as well.

Mazatlan, Mexico, has long been a billfish hotspot. If you go at the right time it probably is just as good as it ever was. Want to include nightlife and bikini watching on a fishing trip? Then give Acapulco a shot, particularly in the fall or early winter. The Continental Hotel here has a fishing package priced at $99 for a party of two. If you're more serious about your fishing try the Hyatt or Dancho Buena Vista at Cabo San Lucas on the Baja Peninsula.

One of the newest billfish hotspots is the Papagayo coast of Costa Rica. Here, a few anglers took 259 sailfish in a little over seven hours of fishing recently. A resort named Pez Vela is located here and it offers excellent fishing.

In Panama there are a couple of hotspots worthy of your consideration. The first is Tropic Star Lodge, located in Pinas Bay south of Panama City. This place has been chalking up billfish records for a dozen years and offers first class facilities and equipment. It's expensive, though. A week's fishing here costs $1550 per person in a party of two. Club Pacifico, located on an island north of Panama City offers comparable fishing for marlin and sailfish for several hundred dollars less. If you'd like to try a new spot that no one else has heard of yet, try Contadora Island, located 35 miles off the coast from the mainland. Fishing should be excellent in this group of islands, a new hotel offers lavish accommodations, and the current price for a fishing package is even cheaper than at Club Pacifico. All of these spots are good, though.

The best location that I know of for billfish is Salinas, Ecuador. Here you can buy a five-day fishing package for $340 which includes ground transportation from Guayaquil, all food, lodging, and three days of fishing. This area offers fantastic fishing for both marlin and sailfish, but the boats and facilities are not as deluxe when compared to a place like Pinas Bay.

All of these places are easy to reach from the U.S., particularly Panama and Ecuador.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

It was the most sensational football idea to come along since Dallas invented Cheer Leaders. Naturally, it came to me while I was playing golf in the rain.

"Owners will love it," I agreed with myself. "They'll be able to cut player's salary costs to rock bottom, eliminate player agents, ignore injuries, and forget player's insurance and retirement programs. Owners will go bananas over it."

And it will still leave the savagery, the sweet violence, the pure barbarism and all the animal bestiality that audiences demand in the name of sportsmanship as they faithfully follow National Football Collisions on fall and winter Sunday afternoons and Monday nights.

And it's so monstrous, so bizarre, so fantastic, yet so logical — in a futuristic kind of way — that Howard Cosell, with all his ambiguous unsignificancy, would love it.

It all started when Bob Dale, the weather actor on Channel-39, promised a clear and dry sky for last Sunday.

"Let's play golf, Dad," suggested Tom my 11-year old terror. "O.K.," I agreed, "But you've got to give me strokes." You can learn not to trust those junior golf sharpies in a hurry.

Sunday's dawn broke soggy and dripping but Tom was as anxious to play as Dale had proven all wet. "It ain't fittin'," I said.

"Come on, Dad. Don't be a summer soldier. You're not going to melt. I'm too little and you're too fat," Tom cracked.

"Only a Marine would play golf in weather like this," I muttered as we drove up to NTC's Sail Ho golf works. And sure enough, who should be coming off as we were going out and the rain was coming down but the great former Marine Football Coach Bull Trometter.

We jabbed and sparred with warm insults for a few minutes before Tom and I sloshed around Sail Ho. We were alone, of course, and between shots I told Tom about Bull, who is now the Athletic Director at La Jolla High School and how he discovered Rolf Benirschke, the Charger's sensational rookie field goal kicker.

Rolf went from La Jolla High to UC-Davis where he earned a BS. in Zoology and in the off season works for his father, Dr. Kurt Benirschke, who is head of the Pathology Department at UCSD and Director of Research at the San Diego Zoo.

A budding NFL star, Rolf booted 17 of 23 attempts, including the last 12 straight, to tie Don Cockroft of Cleveland for NFL field goal percentage honors last season. He's got real foot.

And a head of equal or better ability. Rolf is involved in animal research. It all came together like a thunderbolt after we dripped off and dried out and sat watching "60 Minutes."

They were doing a story on human communications with chimpanzees. Some chimps had developed as much as a 600 word vocabulary using sign language. That's more than a bunch of NFL linemen.

And chimps are of the ape family, cousin to the gorilla, the largest and most powerful of the anthropoids. And with this developing communication program, they sit right in Rolf's special field of accomplishment and interest. All 500 pounds of each potential lineape who could be conditioned to kill the quarterback, pounce on the runner or block any pass or punt.

Eventually, of course, you'd have to breed offensive lineapes, blocking backapes, maybe even line-backerapes. The potential is enormous.

Quarterbacks would likely be the last to go. Unless, of course, coaches start calling all the plays from the sidelines.

And you'd probably need a trainer-conditioner-player on the field to direct the defensive up and down lineapes and the defensive backapes.

Once trained, the only cost would be bananas. Owners would love it. And Cosell already seems to regard most of the athletes on which he reports almost as far beneath him as he must consider the ape family. No change there.

Television would love it. The audience would go wild with its identification at the animal savagery level. Anything an ape endorsed, the public would buy. There would be fortunes to be made in bananas, tree houses, swinging vines and ape-ade.

If you think this is all pretty far out and unrealistic, go on back and see "Star Wars" again. Or "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." Or "Semi-Tough."

It's a helluvan idea. You just never can tell what'll pop through your mind when you're getting beat by an 11 year old kid playing golf in the damn rain.

Lower Otay Lake Opens For Bass Fishing Feb. 22

Southern California anglers will receive a much needed boost with the opening of Lower Otay Lake at sunrise (6:25 a.m.) on Wednesday, February 22. The S.D. Park and Rec. Dept. will operate Otay on a Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday schedule throughout the season.

Over the last half century Otay Lake has developed a reputation as one of Southern California's premiere bass lakes.

In the last decade national attention has been focused on the lake's population of large Florida Strain Largemouth Bass.

Top bass last year was a 15 pound 3 ouncer which was one of 5,391 largemouths landed last season according to records maintained by State Fish and Game Biologist Larry Bottroff.

1977 was a vintage year for other warmwater species as well. Last year's catch of 15,345 bluegill and 3,765 channel catfish represented a dramatic increase (300% and 400% respectively) over the previous year. 139 crappie, 55 bullheads, 26 white catfish, 22 green sunfish, and 17 golden shiners completed the catch.

North Point, Harvey Arm, East Bank, Bushlow Point and the dam area will attract the greatest attention based on past experience.

Lake Ranger Emil Yacko will have 60 boats available on a first-come first-served basis opening week. The boats may be reserved thereafter by calling (714) 449-6169.

Private boat owners wishing to avoid the usual opening week launch-ramp congestion, may launch their boats Tuesday, February 21st, and Friday, February 24th, 8 a.m.-5 pm.

Airlines Games Draws Net Stars

PALM SPRINGS — Three of the greatest performers in the history of tennis, Arthur Ashe, Rod Laver and John Newcombe, have served notice, so to speak, that they'll be formidable factors in the $225,000 American Airlines Tennis Games.

The Games will be played February 13-19 at the Mission Hills Country Club in Rancho Mirage. Qualifying to fill the 64-man draw will start tomorrow.

All three won against strong opponents in recent tournaments. Ashe, former UCLA star coming off a long layoff after surgery on his heel, rallied to beat Ilie Nastase, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, in Virginia.

Laver, 39, overwhelmed Jan Kodes, 6-1, 6-3, at Richmond. Earlier, he had advanced to the quarter-finals at Sarasota.

Newcombe, winner of the first American Airlines Tennis Games in 1974, had several strong tournaments in Australia late last year and has displayed that consistent form this year.

These all-time greats join Bjorn Borg, defending champion Brian Gottfried, Roscoe Tanner, who lost to Jimmy Connors in the recent U. S. Indoor Championship; Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Harold Solomon, Stan Smith, Jeff Borowiak, Tom Okker, Bob Lutz, Cliff Drysdale, Tom Gorman and bullet-serving Colin Dibley.

Tickets may be purchased at all Mutual Ticket Agencies and at the old El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs (714) 325-533. Proceeds benefit the Desert Hospital here.

S.D. City Wins Nod For Water Race Aid

The Unlimited Racing Commission named San Diego the Unlimited Race Sponsor of the Year.

"Although the Commission usually honors the Gold Cup sponsor," Sue Sponnoble, Executive Secretary and Public Relations expert for the Commission, said, "San Diego's race was so superior that the vote went in the City's favor."

The Commission bases its decision on various factors.

"Races are judged by observation of the local race committee's performance of duties, cooperation with Commission officials and the ability to plan, organize and stage a safe and well run hydroplane race," she said.

The 1977 race, grew to include several special events and was a joint effort of the City of San Diego and the more than 1,100 volunteers from the Thunderboats Unlimited Club, the Boys' Clubs of San Diego, Jack in the Box, the U. S. Navy and many other supporting organizations and boat clubs.

"One of the key factors in determining this year's winner of the Race Sponsor Award," Sponnoble said, "was the superior job done in promotional aspects. This is one area where San Diego excels."

Promotion for the 1977 race was handled not only by Race Committee officials, but through local supporting radio, television and newspaper affliates, she said.

Public attendance at the race showed both a larger and more enthusiastic crowd than ever before. "Everyone connected with the sport on a national level, including companies with contingency programs, are very impressed with the live impact generated in San Diego," Sponnoble added.

Padre Tickets Stay on Rise

The popularity of owning tickets for the San Diego Padres' 1978 National League home schedule is still soaring high as the club's ticket count for the period ending Friday stands at 8,630.

Broken down, the Padres have sold 1,512 full-season tickets as well as 7,118 mini-season packages for the overall total of 8,630. Of course, this figure represents a club record for sales since the former mark set last season was passed in the first half of last month.

Season ticket packages run from $314.50 on the Press and Field Levels to $203.50 in the Upper Reserved down to $153-$99 for the 36-game mini-ticket and $102-$66 for the 24-game minis.

Old Gulls, Old Buckeroos Take to Ice for Charity

The San Diego Gulls and Portland Buckaroos will take to the ice again in the first Gull-Buckaroos Oldtimers Hockey Game at the Sports Arena, Sunday, March 12, at 7 p.m.

Some 20 former members of the Buckaroos, Western Hockey League archrival of the Gulls, will fly in from Portland for the game. Art Jones, Jim McLeod and Jim (Red Eye) Hay have already accepted invitations to play in the game, and other Buckaroo stars are expected to follow suit.

Among the San Diego Gulls who have already accepted invitations to play in the game are Willie O'Ree, Gordie Sinclair and Ed Ehrenverth, according to Al Nicholson, co-chairman of the Oldtimers Game. Nicholson will also play in the game. Joe Holmes is also co-chairman of the event.

Many former members of the Gulls and Buckaroo teams and organizations have agreed to participate, and will accept invitations as they confirm their appearance. Several surprises are also planned for the evening.

Proceeds from the game will benefit youth hockey in San Diego, according to Nicholson and Frank Southworth, commissioner of the San Diego Amateur Hockey Assn.

Tickets, which include free parking, are priced at $5.25, $4.25 and $3.25—the Gulls old prices. Youngsters 12 years and under will receive a $1.00 discount on any priced ticket.

The ticket phone is 224-4176.

Banquet of Champions Scheduled for Feb. 24

What has become a San Diego sports tradition over the years will have its 32nd renewal when area athletic stars of the present and past are honored at the annual Banquet of Champions Friday, February 24, in the Presidio Room of the Town & Country Convention Center.

Sponsored by the Balboa Park Hall of Champions, considered one of the finest sports museums in the country, the event will spotlight a parade of men and women athletes, both amateur and professional, who earned recognition in 1977 as Stars of the Month for exceptional achievement in diversified fields.

Tributes also will be extended a group of coaches and administrators who have made noteworthy contributions to the advancement of athletics, and the evening will be climaxed by the presentation of the amateur and professional Stars of the Year and the introduction of the additions to the exclusive Hall of Fame.

Many of the individuals to be saluted have focused national and international attention on San Diego, and the over-all calibre of the various selectees is regarded among the highest in the 32-year history of the event.

The Banquet of Champions at 7 p.m. will be preceded by a one hour, no-host cocktail party, and reservations, at $12.50 each, can be made at the Hall of Champions or by phoning 234-2544.

Mariners to Give Free Hot Dogs, Drinks Saturday

The San Diego Mariners of the Pacific Hockey League are back in action tonight at the Long Beach Arena. It's the second of a 3-game road swing for the S.D. skaters. The Mariners were edged by the Phoenix Roadrunners Sunday in Phoenix, 5 to 4.

For San Diego, it's now a case of beating Long Beach to stay out of the league celler. The Sharks are in the basement with 12 points, while the Mariners have 14.

The league lead is held jointly by San Francisco and Phoenix. But, both the Roadrunners and the Shamrocks have played 3 more games than the Mariners and 4 more than the Sharks.

Tonight the Mariners will again meet the league's number one "bad-man" . . . Dale Smedsmo. He leads the league in penalty minutes, having spent 83 minutes in the penalty box in just 12 games played.

So far this season against the Sharks, the Mariners hold a two to one edge . . . having beaten Long Beach at home, 6-5 in overtime and 4-3, but losing 6-4 to Long Beach. The Sharks are the only team in the league that still have yet to win on the road, but on their home ice, they have a 6 and 1 record.

The Mariners complete their road swing Friday night then return to the San Diego Sports Arena Saturday night for a contest with the Sharks. Last Saturday, 5,620 paid to watch the Mariners against the Shamrocks, and more are expected this Saturday as 2 games and dinner go along with the price of admission. The Mariners say the doors will open at 5 p.m., for the game between the S.D. Cougars and the Santa Monica Warriors. Also, the Mariners will feed everyone all the hot dogs they wish, and all the soft drinks they can drink. It is a promotional first for professional sports.

KSON Radio (1240 AM) now carries the broadcasts of all the Mariner games. Friday at 6:20 p.m., and Saturday night at 7:50.

Schuss Returns To Baseball Air

Veteran sports broadcaster Al Schuss has joined the San Diego Padres television broadcast crew for 1978 it was announced this afternoon by Executive Vice-President Ballard Smith.

Schuss will be used as the color man for regular play-by-play announcers Jerry Coleman and Dave Campbell on the XETV (Channel 6) telecasts on July 1-2 from Houston and on July 4 out of San Francisco. Color chores for the other 20 games on the Padres television package will be handled by Jerry Gross.

The addition of Schuss reuites a team which was a household word in years gone by as he called all of the Padres action from 1949-68 when the club held minor league status in the Pacific Coast League.

In fact, it was Schuss on Channel 8 who called the first televised baseball game in San Diego when he did a Padre game back in 1949.

The assignment will bring Schuss back to the major league level after many years of absence, as he has called the action in the past for the Chicago Cubs and White Sox (1934-35) and the old Brooklyn Dodgers (1941-42).

A graduate of the U. of Washington, the 73-year-old Schuss has also called the play-by-play action for six major universities in football plus the New York Giants.

Additionally throughout the years he's done basketball, boxing, wrestling, crew and dog races.

A top basketball player at Washington, he has also held several coaching positions in the past including two assignments at UW.

Pro Wrestlers In Valentine Title Bouts

Tuesday may be Valentine Day for many folks but it's just another night for the grunt-and-groaners at the S.D. Coliseum.

When the professional wrestlers enter the ring at 7:30 there will be three titles at stake.

The main bout is between Hector Guererro, American heavyweight title-holder, who will defend it against the masked athlete — The Canadian.

There are a couple of added features to the match. If Guererro wins, he unmasks The Canadian. If he loses, The Canadian will trim Guererro's hair.

To add to the suspense, the match will be to the finish and a winner will be certified regardless of time or circumstances.

In a world middleweight tussle with the loser leaving town, Ringo Mendoza will defend against El Faraon. In this match, contestant may use fists without penalty. It's a wrestler-prizefight mix.

Then there's the Coliseum's very own champion, Outlaw Ron Bass defends his local heavyweight title against Butcher Brannigan.

The finale is a tag match pitting Victor Rivera and Dr. Ota against Chavo Guererro and Johnny Rivera.

The Coliseum is at 15th and E streets in downtown San Diego.

Bill Seeks To Raise Collection Agency Fees

Urgency legislation has been introduced to raise licensing fees for debt collection agencies in California.

The bill is sponsored by the Brown Administration and authored by Assemblyman John Knox (D-Richmond) and Senator Dennis Carpenter (R-Irvine).

The measure seeks to reinstate fee levels which agencies paid in the 1960's. In 1971, due to economic recession and a large fund surplus, legislation was passed which cut fees in half.

Under this bill, some 600 collection agencies will pay $375 per year, an increase from $180. No increase is proposed for the state's 2,900 registered collectors. The sharpest increase is proposed for the 1,000 collection agency managers, whose fees would rise from $20 to $100.

Letters To The Editor

D.A. Condemns Slayer's Release

Office of
The District Attorney
County of San Diego
Edwin L. Miller, Jr.
District Attorney

Dear Editor:

It was with a note of ultimate frustration last week that I learned of the setting of a release date for triple slayer Joseph Morse of Chula Vista. Rarely has a prosecutor's office been called upon to expand so much of the public's resources to keep a vicious killer confined. In Morse's case three separate judges imposed the death penalty. In each instance our Supreme Court set aside the death penalty, which resulted in the imposition of "life imprisonment."

Unfortunately, the general public is not aware that the term life imprisonment is a misnomer, for a prisoner serving a life sentence is eligible for parole after serving only seven years in custody. Of greater concern is the fact that terms for all crimes committed merge into a term of life imprisonment. Thus, unless a death penalty is imposed, a multiple murderer suffers no additional punishment for his subsequent killings.

The District Attorney's Office in San Diego has been active in fostering legislation which would confine violent offenders for a longer period than is now required under current law. Psychiatrists called to testify before a legislative committee considering such legislation have stated that it is not possible to predict when the violent offender has been rehabilitated.

How ironic then that prison psychiatrists have predicted that Joe Morse has been rehabilitated and will not kill again, in spite of his own statements to the contrary.

Can anything be done to keep this man confined without a parole date? The only remedy remaining is for the general public to voice its objection to the Community Release Board, which is responsible for such actions. Interested parties should be encouraged to write to:

Gary Macomber,
Executive Officer
Community Release Board
714 "P" Street
Sacramento, California 95814

Now is the time for the public to make itself heard.

Very truly yours,
Edwin L. Miller, Jr.
District Attorney

By State Senator
H. L. "Bill" Richardson

Over a hundred years ago, a French legislator by the name of Bastiat coined the term "Legalized Plunder."

It's a term that often identifies the action of government.

Plundering is exactly what the legislature does when it gives to some the ability to take from others. Inevitably, it is done "in the name of the people," or "in the best interests of the majority," but usually behind all of the "do good" rhetoric lies fundamental greed and ignorance.

A classic example of legalized plunder came forth the other day under the guise of Senate Bill 1186, authored by the Senator from Chico. You may be assured that legalized plunder isn't the way he would explain it . . . "It's just a little ol' district bill," he would say.

Well. I contend all of these little ol' district bills are one of the reasons California land owners are being eaten alive.

The bill deals with Chico's problems over its own Bidwell Park. The problem is that it now costs in the neighborhood of $500,000 a year to maintain the park and its golf course, ballfields, and other facilities.

The even bigger problem is that the tax load on Chico has become unpopular. So, a select governmental few have decided to share the park's tax load with the people outside the city limits.

These city officials choose to assume that people living outside the city enjoy the park as much as the city dwellers.

And, if those people enjoy it, they should pay for it.

Chicoite officials want relief and a lighter tax load. Their "need" is to pay less tax dollars for the park.

So the "needy" officials got together to hatch an idea—"Why not get our Senator to carry legislation that creates a new park district?" they said. "We can broaden the tax base, spread the costs around to more people, and lower taxes on the residents of Chico who are picking up the full tab now. Besides, since everyone could use the park, the new district is in the interests of the majority.

But let's get down to the mathematics of it all. The "new district" the local bureaucrats have in mind will suck up everyone in an area of 100 square miles, except agricultural interests. It includes the city itself, and even extends all the way to the county line in some places.

The question is this: Are there more voting residents living inside Chico (who will get a tax break if the new park district passes), or are there more people outside the city limits (who will be forced to pick up the tab)? From what I can tell, the advantage goes to Chico.

That means even if everyone living outside the city limits votes against the new district, "the interests of the majority" are still the interests of the people within the city limits.

Doesn' seem fair, does it? The power of the ballot, turned into the power to steal.

I offered two amendments to the bill. One, make sure that at least 50% of the people living outside the city limits vote affirmatively on the measure, or make sure that the number of voters inside the city limits is equal to those living in the surrounding area.

Both amendments were summarily dismissed by the bill's author. In fact, the senator refused to answer questions I asked on the bill. He was upset that I would be sticking my nose in his district. His appeal for votes was that it was a district bill, and thus wasn't a concern for the rest of the Senators. In other words, you vote for my district bills and I'll vote for yours.

His logic was compelling—the bill passed overwhelmingly. The logic? You help me roll my logs, and I'll help you roll yours.

Unfortunately, too many people think that once the majority of the legislature passes a bill, it becomes moral as well as law. Majority vote of the legislature sanctifies nothing. All of the nation's legislators, voting in unison, is no guarantee of morality, righteousness, or justice.

Stealing is still stealing, on matter what vehicle is used.

I cannot help wondering what the people of the Chico area have been told about SB 1186, if anything. Do they see that they stand to be accomplices to what amounts to high class piracy?

When you add up all the little ol' district bills you wind up with bigger governmental entities, newly enlarged taxing districts, plus higher property taxes—legalized plunder.

Frederic Bastiat, in 1850, said that one of the results of legalized plunder is that "it erases from everyone's conscience the distinction between justice and injustice."

Metric System; How it Works

By John Corbett

THE KILOGRAM

To understand the kilogram one should have an understanding of mass, variations in the pull of gravity, and weight. Let us consider these subjects in that order.

MASS

Mass should be thought of as the amount of matter in an object, and as a measure of inertia — resistance to being speeded up or slowed down.

An automobile has more mass than a bicycle. For this reason it takes more force to stop a moving automobile than it does a bicycle. Also, it takes more force to start the automobile moving.

At the International Bureau of Weights and Measures near Paris, there is a platinum — iridium cylinder. This cylinder is the international prototype of the unit of mass. "Kilogram" is the name for the (amount of) mass of this cylinder.

To accelerate this kilogram at the rate of one meter per second, each second, requires a force of one newton, whether on earth, in space, or on the moon.

THE PULL OF GRAVITY

The pull of gravity is not the same in all places. The farther an object is from the center of the earth the less effect gravity has upon the object. Crewmen in a space ship are weightless beyond the earth's gravitational field.

WEIGHT

Weight, therefore, is an indication of gravity's pull on an object as it rests on a scale. Weight is what the scale reads. As we put the kilogram cylinder on the scale it weighs one amount. In space, the kilogram weighs a different amount, and one the moon, the kilogram weighs a third amount.

CONCLUSION

The mass of the platinum iridium cylinder, the kilogram, remains constant wherever it is measured.

The weight of the platinum iridium cylinder, the kilogram, will vary as the pull of gravity varies, from one location to another.

First Patients Admitted To Grossmont Rehab Unit

The first three patients have been admitted to the behavioral intensive care unit of Grossmont Hospital's Mental Rehabilitation Center this week.

They were the first patients to be admitted to the eight-bed unit which provides short-term intensive care for patients who may pose a danger to themselves or be somewhat more disturbed than those patients in the main open unit.

The hospital recently received authorization to open the unit under terms of the Lanternman - Petris-Short Act which regulates treatment of mental patients in locked units. This is the only psychiatric service of this type in the entire east county.

Twenty-two additional beds are in the main unit of the Mental Rehabilitation Center. The facility is part of the William T. Soldmann Rehabilitation Center which opened last September 14.

The Mental Rehabilitation Center is situated adjacent to the main hospital. The minimum age for admission is 18 years.

Dahlgren added that plans are proceeding for opening a separate unit for treatment of day patients, in order to provide comprehensive psychiatric services for Grossmont District patients.

'Russia' Film At G'mont Shows New Soviet Side

"The New Russia" is the fourth program in the free series called "Expanding Your Horizons" which is being presented by the Office of Community Education, Grossmont Community College District, on Wednesday at 2 and 8 p.m. in the East County Performing Arts Center, 210 E. Main, El Cajon.

"The New Russia," the first uncensored film of the Soviet Union to date, is a unique, unfettered portrayal of the daily life of ordinary people.

With a commentary written by the noted author, Harrison E. Salisbury, the film is an exceptional view of life as it is in Russia today.

"The New Russia" was 18 months in the making by Producer Theodore Holcomb and depicts one of the most extensive journeys ever permitted foreigners.

Holcomb and his crew covered 12 of the 15 Soviet Republics, including Leningrad and the Baltic States, Moscow, Georgia, Armenia, the Caucasus, Siberia and Central Asia.

The crew spent six months traveling over 17,000 miles, shooting over 30,000 feet of film in conditions ranging from the freezing cold of arctic blizzards to the blazing heat of Asiatic deserts.

At the end of their journey, as they waited at the Moscow airport to depart for home, the KGB decided to destroy by X-ray all the film that they had taken.

The film was saved from destruction due to a malfunction of the X-ray machine used by the Russian Secret Police.

The public is invited to attend this free lecture/film.

Lot Map ID Changes Planned by County

A proposal by the San Diego County Recorder to change the present system of subdivision map identification has been unanimously approved by the San Diego County Board of Supervisors.

The ordinance will change the present name identification system to a tract numbering method and should reduce delay in map processing, provide uniformity among different county jurisdictions, and eliminate staff time spent maintaining a name reservation system, it was said.

The new ordinance will change the present system and use the name of the government jurisdiction (San Diego County Tract 3147, City of Vista Tract 77-2, City of San Diego Tract 9138, etc.) to replace the present naming system. The tentative and final map number assignment process remains unchanged.

Most of the cities in the county will have to amend subdivision ordinances in ordinances in order to implement the system.

After February 21, the County's Department of Land Use and Environmental Regulation will no longer accept tentative maps which contain names and the County Department of Transportation will require final maps in process to be retitled using the tentative map number.

Until such time as all tentative maps with approval names have been recorded or expired, a name may appear on the final map as a secondary means of identification at the subdivider's option.

The County Recorder will continue to maintain a name reservation system until all cities have enacted similar ordinance amendments.

The Office of Intergovernmental Affairs will assist the County Recorder in explaining the operation of the system and in working out an appropriate implementation schedule for each city, desiring to achieve county-wide compliance by the end of this fiscal year.

Married Couples New Minorities

These statistics, compiled by a Californian real estate firm also revealed that women are 21 per cent of the buyers in this house category and that the majority of single buyers was under 30 years of age.

The report involved 258 attached houses sold at developments during the third quarter.

White Paint

liquor store, a store under seige from recent holdups, has attached a flashing blue beacon to their rooftop.

Hannum said the beacon is triggered from the silent burglar alarm system and is an irreplaceable reference point for ASTREA's helicopters.

Most businesses, Hannum added, have some form of lighted outdoor marquees. But, he reiterated, some do not and should consider themselves in the same boat with homeowners and schools.

For now, the abilities of ASTREA seem hampered by the cooperation of homeowners.

The helicopters operate regularly between 8 a.m. and midnight. The units, operating out of Gillespie Field in El Cajon, are on call 24 hours.

So it seems for the homeowner it is a matter of trade-off. Needed is a decision between protection from burglary and a little white paint.

Community School

a community."

The $5,000 grants to both community schools must be spent by December 31 and there are provisions for renewal, stretching the program for an additional two years.

Second year funding is based on a percentage of matching funds other agencies, such as school boards and city councils, will come up with for community school advisory councils.

The $5,000 grants to pump up the advisory councils community schools may become a test, a proving ground of sorts, for yet another revelation in education in the wings —the site council, a body to be formed under AB-65, the state's new state supported school funding bill.

How well the community school advisory councils prove themselves with this new boost from private foundation money may very well predict how well a site council will perform with tax money.

Temporary Placards To Be Issued

The Department of Motor Vehicles has made two policy changes involving the issuance of dashboard placards to disabled persons.

Included in the changes is: temporarily disabled persons, such as those with a broken leg, may be issued a placard granting them special parking privileges for the duration of their illness or disability, and DMV will issue the placards directly to eligible persons in its 147 field offices, thereby eliminating the previous two-week waiting period when the placards were issued by mail from DMV's Sacramento headquarters.

The placards may be issued to temporarily or permanently disabled persons for personal use as either a driver or passenger.

The placards previously have been issued only to individuals who have permanent physical disabilities.

When placed on the driver's side of the dashboard, the 6-by-12 inch blue placard permits parking in areas reserved for the disabled, such as those spaces designated by a blue curb; in metered zones without payment of fees; or in limited-time zones without observing the limit.

The placards have a one-time fee of $4 and require a physician's written statement. The temporary placards will show a projected recovery date as the expiration date.

Vehicles without disabled person license plates or placards may be towed away or subject to other penalties if parked in spaces designated for the disabled.

Recently passed legislation provides that a first conviction for unlawful parking in a space designated for the disabled carries a minimum fine of $25.

Stager-SV Parameds Win $1,000 Award

The Spring Valley paramed unit will be awarded $1,000.00 at a 11 a.m. ceremony Monday by officials of Mt. Miguel Covenant Village at 325 Kempton st. in Spring Valley.

The unit is manned by members of the S.V. Fire Department.

The ceremony will take place on the retirement home's parking lot with approximately 100 of the Village's 127 residents in the audience..

The check is being contributed by the facility for "efficiency and dedication exhibited by the paramed unit during the several instances in which they were called."

June Ekhard, secretary to the administration said that at least one resident is alive today because of paramed aid.

Eugene Hagberg, administrator of Mt. Miguel Covenant Village will make the presentation to S.V. Fire Chief Daryel Stager.

Stager said the money would replenish the paramed general fund, some of which goes to replace first aid supplies.

Neil Good Enters Race For Assessor

Neil Good, chairman of the San Diego County Democratic Central Committee, officially announced his candidacy for county assessor on Monday. Good is a product of Mt. Miguel High School.

Good began his day by picking up petition forms at the County Registrar's office and launched the campaign with four press briefings for media in downtown, North County, East County and South Bay.

Volunteer campaign workers began immediately circulating Good's petitions which will be filed in lieu of posting a filing fee.

Nearly 3,000 signatures by registered voters are required to file for candidacy in the non-partisan county election of June 6th.

"I am seeking election as assessor," Good said, "because I believe the office should be one which should play an active role in the fight for tax reform.

"The current assessor has been virtually invisible to the public for the 12 years he has held office.

"Essentially, he has fixed the tax value of property and that's about it.

"The assessor has done nothing, said nothing, nor promised anything that would help stabilize property taxes."

Good said he believed that the assessor "owes it to the taxpayers" to do more than just assess property values. With a little imagination and leadership," according to Good, "the county assessor can become a key source for tax reform and information. The office should be the focal point for community and business district rehabilitation programs. Most importantly, the assessor should initiate tax reform proposals."

Being what he terms a "working assessor," Good explained that he would seek changes in assessment practices so that home owners can be rewarded, rather than punished, for improving their property.

As a "responsible assessor," Good stated that he would actively push for changes in state laws to make assessments a tool to encourage housing rehabilitation, neighborhood stability, and business district redevelopment.

As a "concerned assessor," Good said that he would take steps to insure widespread public knowledge of assessment practices and of exemptions taxpayers are entitled to receive. He cited the "particular necessity to insure that senior citizens are truly kept fully aware of the tax advantages the state provides them."

To accomplish these goals, Good pledged an "Outreach Program" in which the county assessor "will go to the people in their own neighborhoods to provide information, hear complaints, answer questions, and act positively to solve property tax problems."

He said, "We must cut the red tape of bureaucracy and take the office to the people. Maintaining a low public profile perpetuates an outdated and unimaginative policy of 'sticking it' to the home owner. It's time for a change, not only in the person who holds the office but also, and most importantly, in the entire philosophy of property assessments and tax reform."

New Exhibit Exec For S. Cal Expo

Dora M. "Lolly" Stuckenschneider, of Encinitas, has succeeded Lorene Bohn as Exhibit Supervisor of the Southern California Exposition at Del Mar. Mrs. Bohn retired at the conclusion of Expo 77 after heading that department for more than three decades.

Stuckenschneider was employed by the Expo in 1955, known as the San Diego County Fair. This will be her 23rd year with the Expo.

Aside from her involvement in the entry department at the Expo, Stuckenschneider has been active in San Dieguito high school district affairs where her two grown children are employed as teachers, Little League, Pop Warner, Cub Scouts, Brownies, and Girl Scouts.

She is interested in sports, reading, antiques and needlework.

Exposition General Manager Bill Dumond said she will be dealing with approximately 10,000 exhibitors who are expected to compete for $168,355 in cash premiums, trophies and ribbons. She also will be responsible for the processing of approximately 31,000 entries, Dumond said.

The 89th annual Southern California Exposition will run 14 days — June 21 through July 4.

Condo Switch Is REA Topic

Alan N. Nevin will speak on conversion of apartments to condominiums at the Tuesday 7 p.m. dinner meeting of the San Diego Chapter of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers in the Mission Room of the Mission Valley Inn.

Senior vice president of the Del Mar-based Sanford R. Goodkin Research Corp., Nevin is additionally active in real property syndication. Before joining the Goodkin organization in 1974, he was American Housing Guild national market director.

SREA chapter president Robert Leui said the dinner will be preceded by a 5:15 p.m. study session and social hour at 6.

Ask Your C.H.P.

CHP Capt. C. M. Douglas

Last week this column gave a listing of the curb color markings and their respective parking regulations.

If you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may appear to you, ask it. It could save you a citation, or maybe even your life.

Address your questions in care of this newspaper and please allow at least three weeks for your answer to appear.

This Week's Question:

I am constantly seeing kids riding skateboards in the street. Are there any specific laws for skateboards?

Answer:

No, but a skateboarder is subject to all the laws applicable to a pedestrian. A skateboarder may ride on the roadway, but is required to ride on the extreme left edge of the roadway facing oncoming traffic.

Solar Energy Report Available at BoA

Lower utility bills and increased property values are two of the reasons for going solar cited in a new booklet promoted by Bank of America.

In the bank's latest "Consumer Information Report" includes data on solar energy systems. Copies are available free of charge through Bank of America.

The pamphlet, titled: "Solar Energy: Uses for your Home" includes both types of solar energy systems.

In active solar energy systems, heat from the sun is absorbed in collectors and transferred to storage either by air or by fluids such as water and antifreeze.

The other system, passive solar units, do not use mechanical devices requiring auxiliary power but rather relies on the natural movement of heat and on manual controls such as dampers.

The report is available at most Bank of America branches.
